Frank J. James, State Auditor says that the act does not operate to prevent the recovery by the State of the money due from Franklin county and that he will make a test of the law in the courts. The facts in the case are these. In 1887 the State sold its interest in the Frankfort, Georgetown and Paris turn-pike to Franklin county and this county gave its notes in payment. The notes or claims upon the country treasury were for $1,108.80 each and have been drawing interest ever since. 1906 the Legislature paesed a bill authorizing the sinking fund commission to donate to the counties stock in turnpikes held by the State upon an agreement by the counties to maintain the roads and keep them in repair without tollgates.

These are the admitted facts, but the question that the courts will hav o decide is whether or not the act f 1906 was retractive and whother it wipes out the indebtedness incurr d by
